CHAPTER I

DESCENDANTS OF CORNELIS AERTSEN VAN SCHAICK IN AMERICA

INTRODUCTION

a. PREFACE

During the course of publishing Volume I the Compiler was compelled to make a hard decision because the quantity of available material pertaining to the descendants of Cornelis Aertsen Van Schaick far exceeded the capacity of the contracted number of pages. The solution involved restricting the amount of data applicable to descendant 'daughters' to their immediate families. Even with this unwelcome restriction there was an over-run of some 180 pages.

This situation impelled the Compiler to immediately commence work on Volume II which would include data about descendants of the 'daughters'. It would also include additional data about male descendants, plus the correction of any errors found in Volume I. Volume II is not, therefore, a repeat or revision of Volume I. When a descendant included in Volume I is also mentioned in Volume II, reference is made in Volume II to the number of the page in Volume I where he or she may be found.

Descendants bearing the surname Van Schoyck are included in Volume II. They were omitted from Volume I because they could not be connected at that time with Cornelis Aertsen. This impass was solved with the valuable assistance of Mrs. Patricia Van Schoyck Brown of Indianapolis, Indiana.

Another data breakthrough occurred when it was determined that Timothy the sixth son of Iden (Vol. 1, P. 727) had numerous descendants previously recorded in the Compilers records, but unconnected. The descendants of Timothy used the surname spelling 'Van Scoy.'

In addition, many male and female descendants bearing the surname Van Schaick, or one of its varient surname spellings, have been located through further research by the Compiler and from data furnished by other descendants. These discoveries which are included in Volume II have been most satisfying and in some cases thrilling.

In summary, approximately two-thirds of the pages of Volume II reflect data pertaining to descendants of the 'daughters'.

b. DEDICATION

Volume I was dedicated to my father, Charles Warren Van Scoyoc. It is fitting that Volume II be dedicated to my wife Marjorie and to all those relatives, cousins and others who have so generously contributed their time, effort and data to the success of this undertaking.

c. ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The publication of a genealogy such as Volume I and Volume II would not be possible without the enthusiastic assistance of many wonderful people who have answered my numerous letters and furnished genealogical data about their immediate families, their relatives and ancestors. This is particularly true in regard to the descendants of the 'daughters' who do not bear an Anglicized Dutch surname. Very little data of this nature was furnished by professional genealogists and researchers. The names of the contributors are listed below.

The Compiler has examined and extracted data from several family genealogies. These consist of 'It's All Relative', parts one and two by Daniel F. Evans; 'History of the Scherich Family' by Isaac Wolf Scherich; 'Captain Frans Bloodgood of Flushing, Long Island and Some of his Descendants' by Mrs. Annie Bloodgood Parker; 'William Crawford' by Eliza Ann Van Scoyoc; 'History of the Descendants of John Hotter'; 'The Lain Family'; 'Rice Family' by William Wallace Rice; 'Genealogical Data as to William and Mary Channel', by Myrtle Rosalie Tedrow Emberton and Mary E. Little; 'A Family History (Seward)' by Zane Jacobs and 'The Coberly Book' (unpublished) by Bradley Arthaud, M.D. Appreciation is expressed to those decendants who furnished copies of these genealogies.

Acknowledgement is made of the valuable assistance rendered by several professional Genealogists and Researchers.

Furthermore, the Compiler wishes to acknowledge and express his appreciation to the purchasers of Volume I and the anticipated purchasers of Volume II for their enthusiastic support of those projects.

d. ACCURACY

Little need be said in this Volume concerning the accuracy of the genealogical data contained herein. As previously noted the bulk of the data came from descendants or relatives thereof. It would be foolish to claim that Volume II is error free. The Compiler apologizes for any errors or erroneous statements he may have made in compiling this Volume. Moreover, it is hoped that the reader will bring to the Compilers attention the existence of any erroneous material.

e. ARRANGEMENT OF THE BOOK AND NUMBERING SYSTEM

Family Groupings

The genealogical data in this book are set forth in sequences of family groups for each branch. When a male or female family member is recorded all of his or her descendants are recorded in chronological order of birth until the entire line is complete. As an example; John Van Schoyck, the first son of Peter Van Schoick, had seven children, the first son being William Tobias. All of the descendants of William are recorded in chronological order prior to recording the descendants of David Golden the second son of Peter. The same scheme is followed with respect to the female descendants. Cynthia, the 5th child of John who married Robert Fickle would have her descendants recorded prior to the descendants of her sisters Perthenia A. and Nancy E.

Code Numbers

The Code numbers used consist of a Roman numeral Prefix i.e., III, third generation, followed by one or more Arabic or Common numbers. For example the Code number of the John Van Schoyck mentioned above is VII-1-2-2-3-1-6-1 Page 228. This code number indicates that John is of the seventh generation in America, the first generation member being Cornelis Aertsen. The figure (1) pertains to Cornelis. The figure (2) pertains to Arie, the first son of Cornelis. The second figure (2) indicates that John is a descendant of Iden, the second son of Arie. Next is the figure (3) which denotes that John is a descendant of Francis, the third child of Iden. The following figure (1) indicates that John is also a descendant of John Hampton Van Schaick, the first child of Francis. The figure (6) reflects the fact that John is a descendant of Peter, the 6th child of John Hampton. Finally the numeral (1) indicates that John is the first child of Peter.

It should be noted that the husband and wife bear the same Code number and that multiple wives or husbands of the descendant also bear the same number.

Establishing your relationship to Cornelis Aertsen and other ancestors.

With knowledge of your Code number, it is relatively easy to trace your relationship to your ancestor and to Cornelis Aertsen. To expedite your search follow the instructions of the well known telephone company commercial 'Let your fingers do the walking'.

Assume your Code number is XI-1-2-2-5-1-4-2-8-6-3-4 and you are recorded at Page 638. Since you are the 4th child of your father, his recordation will likely appear on the first, second or third previous pages. His Code number will begin with X and end with (3). The Code number of your grandfather will begin with IX and end with (6). The intervening digits are identical with yours. To continue this process, slowly turn back the pages keeping your eyes on the Code numbers. You will be looking first for a Code number with the Roman numeral VIII and ending with number (8). At that point you will have located your great grandfather. This process can be repeated until you arrive at Cornelis Aertsen, Code Number I-1.

If you are interested in an individual in Volume II where reference is made to a page number in Volume I it is suggested that you turn to that page in Volume I inasmuch as it may include data concerning such individual which is not duplicated in Volume II. However, in some cases the reference to a page in Volume I is for the purpose of recording that an error or omission exists in Volume I as to a Code number, or a date, name or place.

End of Line or Branch

The end of each line or branch is signaled by the symbol below

Line ending may be caused by (a) the descendant may be the last in his or her line, (b) and the unavailability of data pertaining to the individual or subsequent generations.

It may be noted that a child listed in the family group may not again appear in the book. This absence may be caused by the death of the child before reaching maturity. This is indicated by the initials D.Y. after his or her name. Another reason for the omission is that no information other than the date of birth is available.

Indexes

This volume contains several indexes. Each Dutch surname spelling has a separate index for males and females. There is an index for the wives of direct male descendants. Also indexes are included for the husbands of female descendants and their children who bear surnames other than one of the varient Dutch spellings.

g. THE FAMILY SURNAMES

Many different spellings of the surname Van Schaick surfaced during the course of preparing Volume I. One hundred and thirty two spellings are listed in that volume. However, it appears that many of these spellings reflect spelling errors in documents rather than true varient spellings. Adequate genealogical data to develop provable connections with Cornelis Aertsen Van Schaick were available for fifteen of the surname spellings. As previously noted, an additional surname has been added to the fifteen, namely Van Schoyck.

Volume I contains a substantial amount of information concerning the original spelling of the name, the changes in spelling that have occurred and it will not be repeated. However, two explanations of name changes have subsequently come to light and are believed to be worth mentioning.

William Vanskike in writing to a cousin in April of 1871 stated the following:

> 'now in regard to my name we changed it years ago the old original Dutch name was VanSchoick we thought it was so long that we would change it. learned men say that Vanskike is more correct than Van Schoick that is the only reason that we changed it all of us here in Mo spell it Vanskike.' (spelling and punctuation from the original)

Another reason for a name change is found in a letter to the Compiler from Roy Van Scoyoc. He wrote 'The reason our name was changed from Van Scyoc to Van Scoyoc was because my mother was persuaded by a school teacher that there couldn't be two different spellings of the same name. And because all the other Van Scoyocs in the area, spelled their name differently than ours, my mother thought it must be wrong, so she had our name changed.'

The Compiler has accumulated census and other data on a number of individuals using the spelling Van Schoik. So far he has not found it possible to establish their connection with Cornelis Aertsen.

h. PATRIOTIC, HEREDITARY AND OTHER ORGANIZATIONS

Descendants of Cornelis Aertsen are eligible for membership in a number of Patriotic and Hereditary organizations. A good number of ancestors living in New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia and New Jersey served in the Revolution under General George Washington, or in the State Militias. Their service has been recorded in Volume I and in this Volume where data concerning such service is available. The names of the two principal patriotic organizations are: Sons of the American Revolution and Daughters of the American Revolution. Military service in other wars and conflicts is also recorded where available.

A number of organizations venerate the early settlers of America nationally and of geographical areas. Among such organizations are The Order of the Founders and Patriots of America, The Society of Indiana Pioneers, The First Families of Ohio and the Sons and Daughters of Oregon Pioneers. Many of the descendants of Cornelis Aertsen are eligible for membership in one or more of these organizations.

Another group of organizations relate to the Colonial period of America, generally the period before 1776. Some of these organizations are the Colonial Dames of America, The National Society of the Colonial Dames of the XVII Century and the National Society of the Daughters of the American Colonists.

The organization which is particularly appropriate for the direct male descendants of Cornelis Aertsen Van Schaick is The Holland Society of New York. This year (1985) is its Centennial Year. Membership is restricted to males who are direct descendants of a resident of New Netherland prior to 1676. The headquarters are in New York City at 122 East 58th St., 10028. The Compiler is a member and hopes that other descendants will join him. The Society has 25 Branches in the United States and approximately 1000 members.

Copies of original records are required as proof of your descent from an ancestor. Volumes I and II should be helpful in showing your line of descent and where the ancestors resided so that copies of documents may be obtained.

CHAPTER II

THE VAN SCHAICK FAMILIES IN THE NETHERLANDS

In an effort to develop additional information concerning the Van Schaicks in The Netherlands the Compiler employed Mr. John E. Eekhoutte, of Bunik, Province of Utrecht, The Netherlands. In connection with his research, Mr. Eekhoutte located in the Archives of the Province of Utrecht a 14 page manuscript prepared by A. Buchel, a genealogist and historian, who lived in Utrecht in the 1575-1650 period.

The manuscript is a genealogy and history pertaining to many Van Schaycks (also spelling varients) for the period 1325 to 1650. If you substitute an 'i' for the 'y' the surname becomes Van Schaick. The Compiler was advised by a genealogist of the Central Bureau voor Genealogie at The Hague that the surname spelling Van Schaick, Van Schayck and Van Schaik were to a considerable extent interchangeable and one should not be too concerned if variences were found in the early time periods.

The manuscript includes drawings of the Van Schayck Coat of Arms which closely resemble the authenticated Coat of Arms in this volume. The writing and/or printing of the manuscript is called ancient Dutch and presents a considerable problem in translation to English. Two translators declined the assignment. Finally, Mr. Eekhoutte agreed to tackle the difficult task. The resulting translation was helpful through providing knowledge about these Dutch families, but it was not organized into a format which would make it meaningful to the reader of this volume. After considerable study of the data the Compiler concluded that it would be necessary for him to go to Holland and work with Mr. Eekhoutee in organizing the information and connecting the individuals or some of them with the family of Adriaen Cornelis Van Schaick of Westbroek, father of Cornelis Aertsen.

It is evident from the manuscript that the Van Schaycks of Utrecht Province were prominent citizens during this period. Several were Aldermen, Baliffs, and Burgers of the Province. The occupations and business of the persons listed in the manuscript include brewers, a lawyer and priest, a goldsmith, glass writer, several merchants, land owners, farmers and artisans.

THE VAN SCHAICK COAT OF ARMS

The authenticated Coat of Arms in this volume is comparable to the Coat of Arms used by Heynrick Jacobsz Van Schaick, Alderman of the Heerlijkheid Hagensteyn on 1 April 1554 for the authentication of a Charter issued by a three Judge Court in connection with the transfer to Peter Gerritsz of six Mergens of land (about 12 acres) situated in the Joffrouwen Haich, owned by the widow of Heylgen Frederics van Meerlo.

It appears from the investigation made by Mr. Eekhoutte, at the Compilers request, that a similar, but earlier Charter or Coat of Arms of the Van Schaycks is in the General Archives of The Netherlands at The Hague. It is dated 30 April 1490. However, it is in such poor physical condition that it cannot be removed for photographing. It was used by Willem van Schaick who received property from the Capitol of Oud Munster which is in 'De Weerde', the district in which Westbroek is situated.

Until about 1930 the Charter of 1 April 1554 was in the possessionof Baron Heerema Von Zuydwijk at Schloss Surenburg near Munster, Germany. It was returned at that time to the General Archives at The Hague, together with other documents pertaining to the village of Hagensteyn in the Province of Utrecht. The ancestors of the Baron owned the lands of the village. There is no family relationship between Baron Heerema and the Van Schaycks. There was only an Administrative relationship between the Baron and his Sheriff and Alderman who were submitted to his authority. In turn the authority of the Baron was submitted to the feudal Lord, in this case, the Sovereigns of Burgundy. The three fleurs de lys in the Coat of Arms undoubtedly reflect subordination to the Sovereign.

The Coat of Arms or Blazons as they are called in The Netherlands were not considered an award, but were used to distinguish families when they sealed official documents. They were used instead of signatures. The Charter of 1 April 1554 has attached to it by ribbons the seals of each of the three members of the Court. The center seal is of Henrick Jacobsz Van Schayck, the one at the right is that of Jan Diericksoen and on the left that of Loef Alfersoen. The seals are made of black wax the center of each being a replica of the Blazon of each family. The seal of Henrick is 24 millimeters or approximately one inch in diameter and reflects the three fleurs de lys.

CHAPTER III

CORNELIS AERTSEN VAN SCHAICK OF WESTBROEK

Volume I contains historical information about Cornelis Aertsen Van Schaick and his family and life in New Netherland. It was the intention of the Compiler to include in Volume II some additional information he possessed concerning Cornelis Aertsen. However, he received from John Van Schaick of Schenectady, New York a copy of an Essay he had written entitled 'Cornelis Aertsen Van Schaick'. The quality and scope of this work was so impressive that the Compiler requested permission to include it, in its entirety, in Volume II. Mr. Van Schaick who is a direct descendant of Cornelis and a nephew of George Slingerland Van Schaick graciously granted permission for its inclusion in Volume II.

The Essay reflects the performance by Mr. Van Schaick of a great deal of research in the old records and publications pertaining to life in New Netherland during the period 1614 to 1670.

First View of New Amsterdam.

Foreword

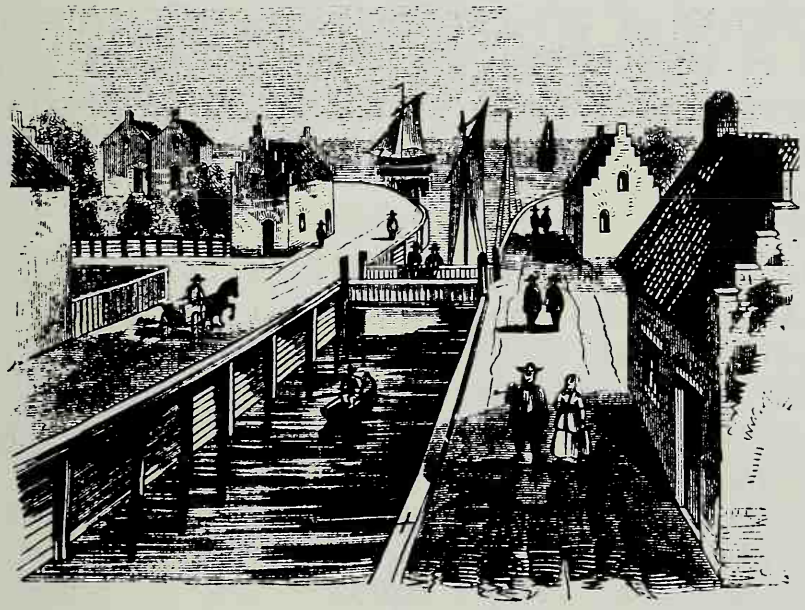
In New Netherland during the Dutch period, three settlers founded families which in later years took the name Van Schaick: Cornelis Aertsen, who settled in the region of New Amsterdam (New York City) perhaps as early as 1636; Goose Gerritsen, who served Kiliaen Van Rensselaer for six years starting in 1637 and who after a brief time in the Netherlands returned to Beverwyck (Albany) in 1646; and Claas or Nicholas, who settled in the Kinderhook region in about 1650. Because of the common name later taken by them or their families, these three have been called cousins, but the degree of cousinhood has never been defined, despite considerable investigation in the Netherlands by L.P. de Boer, J.R.Delafield and W.J.Hoffman, and in New York by E.R.Purple, Dingman Versteeg and Dirk de Young.

Goose Gerritsen and his descendants distinguished themselves as land holders, political figures, and military officers during the colonial and revolutionary periods. Descendants of Claas, who early adopted the Van Schaack spelling of the name, also distinguished themselves. The descendants of Cornelis Aertsen, on the other hand, for most of the same period, remained small farmers and so produced few names of reknown.

Investigators of the Cornelis Aertsen line seem to have been under strong pressure to identify their subject with the two more eminent lines. The Rensselaer records show Goose Gerritsen, a member of the court in 1648, to have come from Westbrook, a village just north of Utrecht, and some effort has been expended to show Cornelis Aertsen to have also been from Westbrook. Something was made of the discovery that Gerritsen had owned briefly a building lot in New Amsterdam adjacent to lands leased by Aertsen after 1660, but Gerritsen had sold the lot to William Teller of Albany in July of 1648 at a time when Aertsen was living a mile away on Pearl Street under the guns of the Fort and was farming lands across the Hudson in Pavonia, so that connection means little.

Missing, scattered, scanty and unreadable records, plus shortage of time and money, all plague the researcher. With no marriage record at hand in the Dutch Church in New Amsterdam, Dirk de Young speculated that Aertsen must have contracted his first marriage in the Netherlands, while Delafield and Hoffman, unable to find any record of the marriage in Westbrook, speculated that Aertsen must have married in New Netherland. Dingman Versteeg, recognizing the virtues and relative obscurity of Cornelis Aertsen and needing a worthy and early founding father for a line of Bryants (Breyandts) in New Jersey, used the scantiest of evidence to nominate, and elect, Cornelis Aertsen the progenitor of that line.

The origins of Cornelis Aertsen and his early life are obscure, but data for his last thirty years are plentiful enough to secure his place in the history of New Netherland. On the record, Cornelis Aertsen was a worthy father of his line: a pioneering farmer and farm manager, a minor office-holder and court-appointed arbitrator of disputes, a part-time trader, an executor of estates and guardian of orphaned minors, he was a respected friend and close associate of the social and political leaders of the New Amsterdam community of which he was an pioneering member.



VIEW OF THE "GRAFT," OR CANAL, IN BROAD STREET, AND THE FISH BRIDGE, 1659.

Origins

Besides his given name, Cornelis used only th patronymic Aertsen or Arissen (spelled variously Aarensen Aarsen, Aarssen, Aarszen, Aartsen, Aarzen, Aersen, Aerssen Aerts, Aertse, Aertszen, Aertszens, Arensen, Arentsen Arentsz, Arisz, and Aryssen). None of the variants in th records include Adriaensen so we must assume that Cornelis father was not known as Adriaen.

In 1642, following the custom of naming the first so after the paternal grandfather, Cornelis used the name Arie, but since Cornelis, later in life, let himself be known as Aertsen, it may be that his father had been baptized Aert o Arent and was called Arie familiarly. The first use we find of the Latinized form Adriaen appears in 1665 when Arie, a the baptism of Iden, is recorded as Adriaen Cornelisen.

The family name Van Schaick has not been found associated with Cornelis Aertsen in any known record made during his lifetime, but a decade or so after his death, his descendants, under the English, began to use the name of this family from which Cornelis presumably descended. The Van Schaick name had been prominent in and about Utrecht for over two hundred years having originated first in a manor of Schadewyck, contracted first to Schawyck and further to Schayck or Schaick, near Vianen on the borders of Utrecht and South Holland. Van Schaicks later located at Wyck-by-Duurstede and at Rhenen and at a new manor near Amersfoort. There is a Schaick in the Province of South Holland and two manors, Great and Little Schaick, in the Province of Gelderland.

People bearing this family name were prominent especially about Utrecht, where they associated closely with the Van Wyckersloot and Van Voorst families, among which families there were many intermarriages. But not all members of the Van Schaick family used the name. Those who, through misfortune, were landless and unschooled often used patronymics, forebearing the use of the family name as a kind of social pretension, inappropriate to their station in life.

Cornelis Aertsen was born about 1609, the year Hendrick Hudson explored the river along which Cornelis later lived for over three decades. His birth was surely in or near Utrecht, the city from which Cornelis claimed to come and where he may have spent his childhood, but whether his birth took place in the city, at Westbroeck a few kilometers north, or at Bunnick, Bilt or Houten a few kilometers south, is open to speculation.

The year 1609 also marked the start of the Twelve Year Truce in the war with Spain and it signalled great mercantile expansion and broad prosperity throughout the United Provinces, but expansion of schooling lagged and Cornelis Aertsen remained unschooled and illiterate. In signing his name he made his mark which was a form of cross not unlike an Indian swastika or good luck sign

In making his mark Cornelis was typical of more than half of the male settlers in New Netherland before 1660, and among those who signed their names, some number, perhaps as many as another half, were basically illiterate. Most farmers, boatmen, laborers, soldiers, and most women of the time were unable to read or write; most merchants, traders, ships officers, and company and public officials were literate.

The form of a name suggests education and social position. Nicolaes Verleth clearly outclassed Claes Teunissen. Jan Damen was literate but Johannes de la Montagne was university trained. In Latin school and at university, students Latinized names so Hendrick became Henricus; Jacob, Jacobus. The Latin Adriaen had familiar forms Aert, Arie, and the somewhat more formal Arent. But although the Latin form Cornelis had the familiar forms Cors and Kees, Aertsen (often Arissen or Arentsen) was always Cornelis.

Family names arose from place of origin, from occupation, or from personal or physical characteristic. There might be two or more Jan Jansens: the miller might be Jan Jansen Molenaer; the tall one, Jan Jansen de Groot; or the Scandanavian, Jan Jansen Noorman. Confusion arises when a place of origin becomes a family name as in de Vries (the Friesian). Many of the occupational, descriptive, and place names used became the family names of descendants.

In 1623 the Dutch West India Company began colonizing lands in North America along the Fresh, North, and South Rivers (the Connecticut, Hudson, and Delaware) where Dutch fur traders had been dealing with the Indians. Earlier contingents were followed in 1625 by an expedition of three ships and a sloop delivering farmers, laborers, craftsmen, and company functionaries along with livestock, farm implements, and materials for mills and essential installations.

With this expedition, in charge of laborers, came Cornelis van Voorst, cousin of Cornelis Aertsen and cousin also of two West India Company directors from Utrecht, Cornelis van Wyckersloot and Arnoldus Buchelius. Van Voorst, a middle-aged man, educated in Latin, who brought over his wife and two of his sons, Jan and Hendrick, had his hands full in his job. His laborers were reported to be "of not much account, a rough lot who have to be kept at work by force."

It was three of these men, laboring on Director General Pieter Minuit's bouwery on Manhattan beyond the Fresh Water who waylaid an Indian coming to trade, slew him, and stole his furs before the eyes of his nephew, a child under the age of ten. The Indians were a vengeful lot and for a dozen years the nephew brooded over this wrong which never was compensated by the giving of presents to the family (a form of bloodwite). In 1641, to correct matters, the nephew murdered a presumably innocent old-time settler Claes Cornelissen Swits. This murder, which under the Indian code of laws was proper and not punishable, was a major cause of the Indian War of 1643-45.

In 1630 Van Voorst returned to Utrecht and Amsterdam where he agreed with patroon Michiel Paauw to be Chief Officer of a colony for which Paauw and his partners had filed embracing Staten Island and north to Hoboken. If Van Voorst supervised the land purchases, he was back by July 12, 1630, when an Indian deed was registered for Hoboken Hackingh. Two other deeds followed. Soon after, in about 1632, a house was built for Van Voorst at Ahasimus on the shore between Hoboken and Paulus Hoeck. This house, palisaded and lightly fortified, was occupied by Van Voorst with his family and farm servants, some apparently recruited in the Manhattans.

Hans Jorissen Hunthum, agent for the Company at Fort Orange, came there in April 1634 and lost his life in a knife fight with Van Voorst, to no one's great regret. And there on June 25, 1636, Skipper David Pietersen de Vries, Dominie Everardus Bogardus, and Director General Wouter van Twiller engaged in a wine-tasting bout with Van Voorst that ended with a cannon salute setting fire to the rush roof of the house, as described by de Vries.

The house was soon rebuilt but this time with a board roof. Van Voorst's wife died sometime during the 1630's and he remarried to Vrouwtje Ides, who gave Cornelis a daughter Annetje and a son Ide. Cornelis died before March of 1639, leaving Jan and Hendrick, then approaching their majorities, and a relative Gerrit Jansen van Voorst, perhaps a nephew. Gerrit made his mark in 1642 while thatching a house at Achter Col (Newark Bay); a drunken Indian, wronged by the whites, proved his ability with a bow by putting a lethal arrow into poor Gerrit up on the roof.

Whether or when Van Voorst had brought over their cousin Cornelis Aertsen, by then in his early twenties, we don't know, but Cornelis is reported to have come to New Netherland in 1636 with a grant of land in his possession, in itself suggesting that this was a return trip, since grants were seldom made except for prior service with the Company.

In January 1640 we have written confirmation of Cornelis Aertsen's presence in New Amsterdam (and evidence of his age) in an affidavit made for Huyck Aertsen van Rossum, a prominent colonist with interests in Pavonia. Huyck had been berated and attacked in a tavern by a drunken woman, the wife of Hendrick Harmansen, then the tenant on Bouwery No.6 near the present Chatham Square. After the sword had been taken from his wife, Hendrick drew his knife and thrust at Huyck, who "tossed his own knife aside so as not to injure anyone." Cornelis Aertsen and three others attested to the events.

Cornelis may have married in New Amsterdam before the end of 1639 when the Dutch Church records of marriages begin, or perhaps he married Belitje Hendricks on a visit home. If the latter she joined him by 1640 because on July 7, 1641, their first girl was baptized Hendrickje in the old church which stood on the north side of Pearl Street, overlooking the waters of the harbor; Water, South, and Front Streets, and most of the south side of Pearl Street are filled land.

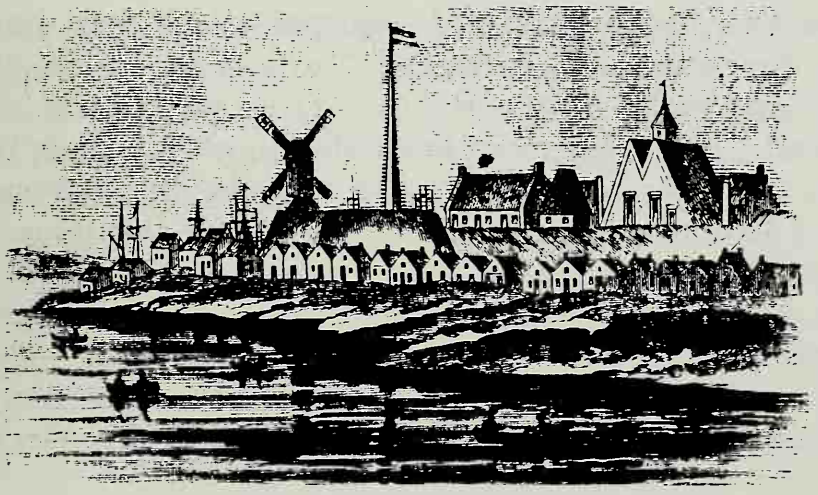
Dominie Everardus Bogardus officiated; Tryntje Simons and Jacob Stoffelsen were witnesses (the witness had much the role of godparent). Tryntje was the wife of Jan Evertsen Bout of Pavonia, later one of the Eight Men, and in 1646, with Huyck Aertsen, a magistrate for Breuckelen. Jacob Stoeffelsen was almost a relative: he was the present foreman of laborers for the Company, had married Cornelis van Voorst's widow in 1639, occupied the Van Voorst house in Ahasimus, and was a guardian of Ide and Annetje van Voorst, their mother Vrouwtje Ides having died in April 1641.

A year later the Dominie performed another baptism for the Aertsens when on July 9, 1642, he cleansed their first born son of original sin and entered the name Arie on the records of the Dutch Church. Huyck Aertsen, Marie Hans, and Anneken Loockermans were the witnesses. Anneken, the sister of the merchant Govert Loockermans, had come to New Netherland the year before and on the February 26th had married Oloff Stevensen van Cortland from Wyck-te-Duurstede near Utrecht, a Company office holder and a deacon in the church, who was just now starting his accumulation of great landed wealth.



War with the Indians

Trouble with the Indians built for years with provocations on both sides. The murder of Claes Swits led Director General Willem Kieft, on August 29, 1641, to convoke a board of Twelve Men for advice. The majority wanted peace but, knowing Kieft wanted war, advised war, but only if Kieft personally led the attack. Since Kieft never slept away from the safety of the Fort, what they had said was: "No war."

Jan Jansen Damen, from Bunnick, was one of the Twelve Men, as were his stepson-in-law Abram Planck, and Maryn Adriaensen, a business associate. Kieft had forbidden the Twelve Men to meet, but at a Shrovetide party in Jan Damen's house, the three decided to petition him in the name of all the freemen to attack the Indians. The petition was prepared by another Damen stepson-in-law, Secretary Cornelis van Tienhoven and signed by the three. The toasts that Kieft and the four drank were noted but not understood by other guests.

Kieft's targets were two camps of Indian refugees from the Mohawks, one on Jan Evertsen Bout's bouwery, the other on Manhattan near Corlaer's Hoeck. Subsisting on food supplied by the Dutch, they were hardly a threat. Ignoring the objections of David Pietersen de Vries, head of the Twelve Men, Kieft, on the night of February 24, 1643, sent soldiers to Pavonia and the burghers to Corlaer's Hoeck. De Vries says eighty including infants died at Communipaw and forty on Manhattan.

When the local Indians learned what had happened, they fell upon the unwarned farmers. The colonies on Staten Island were burned and many farmers killed; flourishing bouweries on Manhattan and Long Island were destroyed; Hendrick Harmansen died on the island. Most of the houses in Pavonia were soon burned in the night by Indians shooting burning arrows into the thatched roofs.

Cornelis Aertsen was living in Pavonia and with his family took refuge near the Fort. There the day after the attack, Aertsen with Jacob Stoffelsen and Gerrit Dircksen Blauw, two of the Twelve Men, accosted Director Kieft across the bastion: "You have done fine work," said Stoffelsen. "Fine work," said Blauw, "causing the murder of Christian blood," referring to his stepson, killed that morning. The Director replied, "It's the fault of the freemen that the Indians were attacked, but your neighbor, Abram Planck, who was well aware of it, might have warned you."

The surviving Pavonians, some eight families, took refuge in the the town or in the Fort. Among Pavonians killed at the onset, besides the stepson of Blauw, were Dirck Straatmaker and his wife whose house was at Cavin Point. They had come to the scene of slaughter at Communipaw and, unafraid though warned of danger, were soon struck down by Indians. Their baby Jan was rescued from his dead mother's arms. The mortally wounded Dirck, asked why he had not run when he could have, replied: "I could not leave my poor wife."

Abram Planck, owner of Paulus Hoeck in Pavonia, had conspired to start hostilities and was in a financial bind as a result. In April of 1643 he mortgaged the Hoeck to his in-laws Jan Damen and Cornelis van Tienhoven and on April 20th he leased the whole of it to Cornelis Aertsen, including his house and garden, for six years at 100 guilders the first year and 160 guilders each of the next five. Planck was to build a barn and Aertsen was to keep it and the house watertight. Improvements made by Aertsen would revert to Planck.

The Hoeck was the point on the Hudson's west bank closest to the south tip of Manhattan. Its early name was Horen Hoeck, a place to meet the Indians for trade and recreation, but that was past. It was good tobacco land, rich sandy loam. In the Hoeck Aertsen had a sizeable tract, relatively high, cut off from the mainland in part by swamps, with a low hill from which watch could be kept. It was so close to Manhattan that the buildings may even have survived the war. One house in Pavonia did, and that on Paulus Hoeck was the likeliest.

A House in Town

While Paulus Hoeck was relatively safe, it was not entirely secure, which may be why "Cornelis Arissen van Utrecht" purchased a lot in town from Jacob Roy, gunner at the Fort. The deed bears the date April 14, 1645, but the purchase may have been earlier. Aertsen's lot was 33 feet wide by 182 feet deep on the north side of Pearl Street, about where State runs past the present west end of Pearl. On this lot Aertsen had a house built with a stable behind where dairy and draft animals and fodder for them could be kept. The garden and orchard of fruit trees backed up close to the Fort's southeast bastion.

Proximity to the Fort may have provided safety, but it bothered householders when the guns were fired. Otherwise the location was good. The new church which looms above the walls of the Fort in views of the town made during the last two decades of Dutch rule was but fifty yards from Aertsen's by way of one of the footpaths over the dirt walls. Government centered also in the Fort and the trading activities of the Company were directed from there.

Aertsen's house, at that time, was the sixth house west of the main intersection of the 70-house village, the corner of Pearl Street and t'Marcktveldt (Whitehall). It was the same distance from that corner to the Capske or landing place. On the strand at the corner, a Saturday market was developing; it would soon become the official place and day for farmers to sell their produce. From Aertsen's house around the corner to the White Horse Tavern run by his friend Philip Geraerdy was a little over 300 yards; to the City Tavern, which later became the City Hall, on the East River shore was a bit farther.

The Aertsen house stood with its gable end facing the street, two stories and a loft high. From the front stoop past the facing houses, one saw to the left the green slopes of Breuckelen, ahead to the left Nutten (Governor's) Island, then the harbor with Staten Island ahead and to the right, and off to the far right Pavonia and Paulus Hoeck.

In this house on the north side of Pearl Street a second son Hendrick was born in 1646. It is doubtful the mother of the noted Anneke Jans Bogardus, midwife Tryntje Jonas, who lived next door to the west, assisted at the birth since she was in failing health and died soon after, but her granddaughters Tryntje and Sara Roelofs, the latter, wife of the surgeon Hans Kierstede, were witnesses at the baptism performed on September 23 by Dominie Bogardus. Other witnesses were Evert Cornelis Van de Wel, owner of the trading yacht De Juffrou, and Jan de Vries, the captain of 150 soldiers at the Fort.

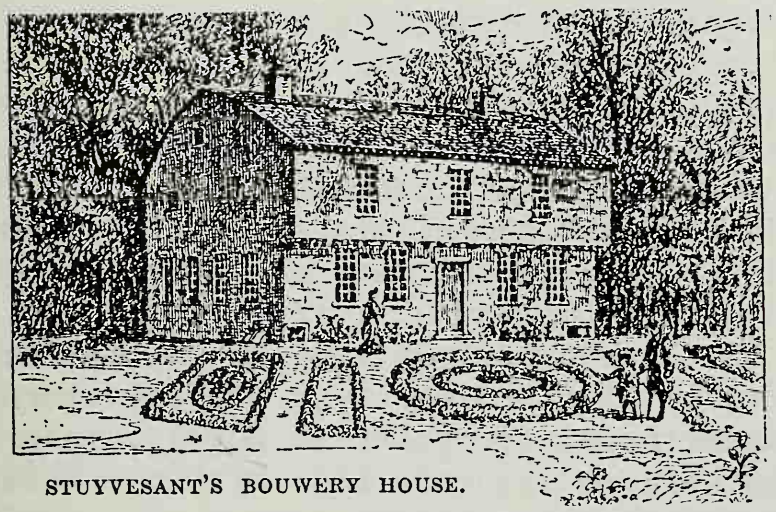
On September 12, 1648, "Cornelis Arissen" gave a note for 322 guilders in sewant to Isbrant Dircksen Goethart to be repaid on June 1, 1649. The loan was probably 300 guilders at 10%, the extra 22 guilders being interest. This money may have been used to put into production a 22-acre tract on Manhattan on the East River southwest of Corlaer's Hoeck in anticipation of the end of the Paulus Hoeck lease in the spring of 1650.

Stokes says this 22-acre tract was granted to Aertsen in 1645, but he also notes that the land was granted to Edward Marrill on October 22, 1645. Perhaps Marrill sold it to Aertsen, or perhaps it reverted to the Company because the grantee failed to develop it; if the latter, Aertsen may have gotten it a year or two later. This parcel, which Aertsen held until his death, has been thought to be the "Aertsen's Bouwery" referred to in 1658, but that term probably applies to a parcel located a half mile away.

In the note, Aertsen identified himself as "living in Pavonia", yet he still held the house on Pearl Street. Until the birth of Hendrick, Belitje may have lived there, taking boarders from among the unhoused as so many wives did. With safer conditions in Pavonia after 1647, the house may have been rented though no lease is on record. After the Paulus Hoeck lease ran out in the spring of 1650, the house on Pearl Street again became Aertsen's primary home.

The Bouweries

A wagon road from the tip of Manhattan followed an old Indian trail past orchards and bouweries to the common pasture which covered the area of the present City Hall Park. Turning east, the road rounded Catiemut's Hill, since leveled, then turned north to cross the Fresh Water brook, entered the present Chatham Square and proceeded north to the Great Bouwery. Beyond the present 24th Street, a footpath ran north through Harlaem and the Bronx.



STUYVESANT'S BOUWERY HOUSE.

This Bouwery Road was built by Van Voorst's laborers shortly after Minuit purchased Manhattan. North of the Fresh Water (a drainage system with a seventy-foot-deep lake called the Kolck or Collect), they built eight numbered bouweries, each with access to the Road. The Great Bouwery, No.1, farthest north, was for use of the Director General. In addition, Pieter Stuyvesant had assigned himself Bouwery No.2, to the south, and adjacent lands. He then engaged Jan Jansen Damen, on a trip to the Netherlands in 1650, to buy these lands for him. Damen got him a deed for 6400 guilders and returned home to die almost immediately on June 18, 1651, aged 44.

A year and a half before, on December 12, 1649, Jan Damen, "lying sick abed", had made a will naming Cornelis Aertsen, Egbert Woutersen, and Thomas Hall administrators of his estate and guardians of his nephew. Aertsen and Woutersen, former Pavonians farming on Manhattan, had known Damen through his stepson-in-law Planck for a decade.

Hall and Damen had known each other longer. Hall and a partner George Holmes were the earliest recorded English settlers in the colony, having been captured in 1635 by the Dutch in a party of English from Virginia trying to establish tobacco plantations on the South River. Brought to New Amsterdam, they introduced tobacco growing to the Dutch and prospered. In 1643, Hall, as one of a council of Eight Men convoked by Kieft for advice on the Indian war, voted to eject the eighth, Jan Damen, for his role in starting it, but under Stuyvesant, Hall and Damen sat together on a board of Nine Men, Damen as a burgher representative and Hall as a farmer.

Three days after Damen's death his widow, named administrators for her interest in the estate, "to divide and arrange it to her and her children's best advantage". One of the first acts of the joint administrators was to appoint Jan Vigne, Damen's step-son, to "command the servants of Jan Damen, deceased, and direct farming activities until the 1651 crop is brought into the barrick and barn". Jan Vigne, the first European child born in the colony, was probably born in 1624; in 1649 Vigne's name began to appear in public records, indicating he had just become 25; this fits with the Walloons' arrival in 1624 and with his apparent tender age in 1632 when Jan Damen married his widowed mother.

The inventory of the Damen estate accounted for some 1200 items ranging from livestock, scythes and a quantity of hops to clothing and bedding, gold and silver specie, and gunlocks. It took two days to complete and the administrators took turns. Cornelis Aertsen and Jacobus Van Corlaer signed the second day's inventory sheets having listed items in the rear part of the house, barn, loft and brewery.

The Great Bouwery had been leased by the Directors over the years and when the lease expired in about 1653, Cornelis Aertsen undertook the operation, probably moving into the fine house which Van Twiller had had built for the Director's use. This house stood just northeast of what is now the corner of First Avenue and 15th Street. Besides the house, the Van Twiller buildings were "a very good barn, a boat house, and a brew house covered with tiles."

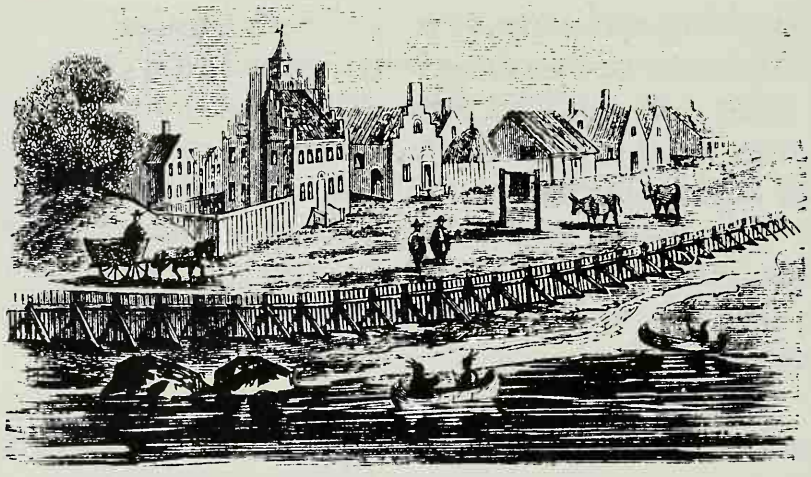
The lands were extensive, requiring a score of farm laborers. Some two dozen Negroes freed by Kieft had been granted small plots along the Bouwery Road, most on the west side opposite the Great Bouwery, but also on both sides of the Road south to Chatham Square. These freedmen made up much of the farm labor force and constituted a nucleus for the Bouwery Village. At least one slave owned by the Company worked on the Bouwery at this time and Stuyvesant personally owned Negroes. Probably Aertsen also owned Negro slaves.

The capital required to operate the Stuyvesant lands may not have been the only reason Aertsen, at about this time, sold a six-acre plot of land in Flatbush on Long Island to Dominie Johannes Polhemus. He also sold his house in town to the early poet Jacob Steendam, who lived there for seven years composing verse protesting the maladministration of the colony by the Company and presaging its loss to the English.

Perhaps Aertsen needed cash to buy land on the east side of the Bouwery Road just north of DeLancey Street. This parcel, described as eight acres by Stokes but measuring sixteen acres on his charts, had been first granted in 1644 to Bastiaen, a Negro. The grant lapsing, it was regranted in 1653 and sold to one Ryck Hendricks, who sold it to Aertsen.

Aertsen definitely occupied this property before April 10, 1658, when Claes Teunissen, a "farm servant living on Cornelis Aertsen's bouwery", spoke of having some barrels of tobacco delivered to his master there; Aertsen's occupancy may have been as early as 1656. The plot of Bastiaen contained a house, barn and barrick; Aertsen's 22-acre plot on the East River less than a half mile away seems to have had no buildings during the 1650's functioning as a plantation. Together the two plots made up a good-sized farm, which Aertsen held until his death.

Aertsen's occupancy of the Great Bouwery may have ended as early as 1656, but perhaps he continued to farm some Stuyvesant lands. In August 1660, he leased Pannebacker's Bouwery (No.4), from Thomas Hall, who had gotten it trading farms in 1653. This 50-acre bouwery adjoined the Bastiaen plot to the south and east. The house may have been destroyed in 1655, but Aertsen only needed the land. Arie was eighteen and Hendrick fourteen, each old enough to do a man's work.



Court Actions

In September of 1655 the shooting of an Indian girl stealing peaches in an orchard just outside of town provoked the Indians in the area to run amok, killing numerous men on the bouweries and carrying off scores of women and children for ransom. Among those killed near Harlem were Cornelis Classen Swits, eldest son of the victim of the 1641 murder, and Tobias Teunissen; the heads of the two men had been found by parties rounding up cattle which had run off into the woods. Among those held for ransom were their widows and children. The Orphanmasters, meeting in the belfried City Hall on the bank of the East River, on November 10th named Egbert Woutersen, Thomas Hall, and Cornelis Aertsen to dispose of the cattle as they judged best for the benefit of the heirs.

These events occurred while Director Stuyvesant was away with most of the able-bodied men on an expedition to oust the Swedes from the Dutch lands on the South River. At the height of the madness, getting approval from Cornelis van Tienhoven, who had been left in charge, Aertsen succeeded in preserving the General's property from devastation by hiring guards from among the sailors on a French ship which was in the harbor, plus at least one local laborer.

Aertsen paid off the sailors at 25 florins apiece, but on May 1, 1656, he was sued by Cornelis Jansen, woodsawyer, for the same pay according to agreement. Aertsen suggested Cornelis van Tienhoven should pay since he had been in charge and had authorized the hiring but said he would pay if he could take the money out of his rent for the bouwery.

The woodsawyer in turn was being sued by Aertsen's brother-in-law Andries Willemsen Hoppe from whom Jansen had rented a gun to use on guard. Jansen argued that since he hadn't been paid, he didn't yet owe the agreed-upon gun rental of half his guard's pay. The Court ordered Jansen to pay Hoppe ten guilders; it then ordered Cornelis Aertsen to pay Jansen what he owed and to collect from whom he could. The problem may have resulted from disagreement as to how much Stuyvesant's property had benefitted from the guards versus Aertsen's own benefit in protection of crops, animals and family. On June 19th Jansen was back in court asking for execution of the judgement against Aertsen.

In 1655 Cornelis Aertsen's name began to appear in the court records along with Thomas Hall's as an Overseer of Common Fences on Manhattan, enforcing the obligation that those who used the common pasture had to keep the fences in good repair. On June 7th fines were sought from four men, one of whom was excused on account of age. In the spring of 1656, "the common fence was so much out of order" that the Overseers contracted for its repair, levying a quota for the cost. The Overseers didn't collect enough to pay for the work, so Hall and Aertsen found themselves sued for a balance of 24 florins in wages. The Overseers were ordered to pay within three days and thus were given good incentive to make collections.

On July 3, 1656, Aertsen's name was associated with three cases in court. In the first, he and Dirck Claesen Braeck were tapped as arbitrators in a dispute over damage caused by cattle getting onto tilled land and "daily causing great damage". The arbitrators were to inspect and value the damage.

Later that same day, Dirck Claesen Braeck was charged with tapping and "giving drink to three or four different persons during the sermon the previous Sunday afternoon." Braeck denied the charge saying he had "only treated Nicolaes Verleth, Cornelis Aertsen, Ide van Voorst and their wives to a drink of beer through friendship and good neighborhood, without taking a penny ... as they did him many favors when after his cattle." Braeck, a Pavonian, tapped while waiting for conditions across the River to settle down so he could again occupy his farm, as he (and Ide van Voorst) later did. He was released with a warning as a first offender. Verleth, at the time, was a widower and if he was accompanied by a female companion, it was probably Anna Stuyvesant, widowed sister of the Director, whom Verleth married on October 14th. Perhaps the celebration was the couple's decision to wed.

In the next case, Cornelis Aertsen and Ide van Voorst were charged "because their servantmen raced on last Sunday evening after the sermon, within the City, with horses and wagons, amid much noise and singing, from which much damage and disaster might have arisen." The defendants admitted the racing, but they "had no knowledge of any damage caused, or that the same was forbidden..." The Court condemned them, as masters of their servants, to fines of three guilders each.

On May 20, 1658, Belitje Hendricks sued Pieter Jansen and Gerrit Pietersen, his partner, who had "one meal of victuals in her house and had been out two days riding with the wagon." She asked for the balance of 40 florins. Noting that Evert Duyckinck, the glazier, owed the defendants money and that she owed Evert, she askd that 40 florins be allowed as an offset and "that each be paid with a closed purse." The court so ordered.

On September 17, 1658, Cornelis Aertsen was in court demanding 100 florins in beavers from Christiaen Barentsen's widow for sale of a horse. The widow said she didn't have any beavers and offered to pay in seawant (wampum) at beavers price. The Court ordered her to pay in beavers in 14 days.

A year later on September 2, 1659, the shoe was on the other foot. Aertsen was being sued by Raghel van Tienhoven, the former secretary's widow, for a 401 florin debt, on which 99 florins in seawant, two skepels of winter wheat, and one skepel each of white and grey peas had been paid. Aertsen had offered an ox, but the widow said she wouldn't know what to do with it. The matter was referred to referees, but on March 6 1660, the two were back. Nothing more had been paid and the Court ordered Aertsen to pay the balance owed.

Reconstructing Aertsen's business activities on the basis of available information would be plain guesswork; there seems to be no way to learn why he was so short of cash at this stage of his life. It is interesting that it occurs in the year after the deaths of Andries Hoppe and Jacob Coppe.

Geertje Hendricks, Belitje's sister, was in New Nether-and no later than mid-1651 with her husband Andries Willemsen loppe, who began trading on his own account up river in about 655. Both Hoppes had sharp tempers; he once struck the wife of a potmaker who berated him, and Geertje's tongue got her in rouble. They owned a house on the east side of the Heere Wegh Broadway) opposite the cemetery. Their five children were all orn in New Amsterdam between 1651 and 1659: Catrina, Willem, lendrick, Matthys, and Adolf. But Andries Hoppe died shortly efore December 18, 1658, on which date his widow told the Orhanmasters that her husband had wanted Cornelis Aertsen and ambert Huybertsen Mol to be the children's guardians. The uardians were told to inventory the estate and report.

When the Orphanmasters met next on January 8th, Ryck endricksen, the woodsawyer from whom Aertsen had bought Basiaen's plot, reported his wife Judith Cornelis had died leavng him with two children, Hendrick and Gosewyn, 10 and 9. As uardians, he had named Cornelis Aertsen and Pieter Stouten-urgh. Ryck seems to have worked hard and accumulated little; he maternal estate was small. On March 5th the guardians reorted that Ryck would pay each child 50 florins on coming of ge. The Hoppe guardians' work was not so easy.

On February 12, 1659, Geertje Hendricks appeared with-ut an inventory of the estate. Threatened with a fine, she ame again without the inventory; so long as she didn't remar-y, she said she saw no need to report the estate. Told it was er duty, she said she wouldn't; the Orphanmasters might do as hey pleased. They pleased to order Aertsen and Mol to produce he inventory which they did, but when asked if she had agreed n a settlement with the guardians, Geertje refused unless she emarried. Told she must, she replied tartly: "Must is force."
Words followed and the guardians took her away. On the 19th f March an agreement was filed: she would pay each child 200 florins on coming of age, payment to be secured by mortaging er house, but then came a year's delay.

Andries Hoppe had had joint ventures with Jacob Claessen Coppe, witness at Lysbet Cornelis' baptism, which dealings Geertje continued. But Coppe died the spring of 1659, probably from an infected finger injured on a trading trip "up above" to Beverwyck. He left a will naming Lysbet Cornelis, daughter of Cornelis Aertsen, and Merritje Jans, daughter of Jan Aertsen van de Bilt, as heiresses. The girls had been toddlers when the will was signed on December 14, 1653.

First, the will was challenged because Coppe had told people he had destroyed his last will and that it was of no value. One man called to testify about this said: "It doesn't matter whether he said that or not, the will exists." Cornelis Aertsen noted dryly that the reports might be made "by certain people because they would like it to be so". Nobody said, for the record, that maybe Coppe made two wills and then tore one. The will was upheld, but it was April of 1660 before hard work began on sorting out the two estates. Geertje planned to marry Dirck Gerritsen van Tricht, son of a prosperous burgher, and settling the Hoppe children's inheritances had high priority. The agreement of March 1659 went into effect.

On June 18, 1660, when Geertje was asked how things stood between her and Jacob Coppe, she "replied confusedly". Detailed and unorganized, her statement was a stream-of-consciousness discussion of a trip to Beverwyck, of debtors spoken to, of grindstones almost all sold, of bearskins divided with sister Belitje, of 500 florins received on a Hoppe-Coppe owned yacht, of a horse bought her by her husband, and of beavers owed to and by Coppe. She promised a written statement of what she owed the Coppe estate and claimed from it in a week.

When they received the written statement, the Orphanmasters found it "not intelligible". Lengthy examination of Geertje didn't help. The Orphanmasters had difficulty making her information correspond with the accounts and they directed Geertje, Cornelis Aertsen and his wife Belitje Hendricks, and the administrators to appear at their next meeting.

They came three days later and Jan Aertsen van der Bilt came too. Geertje satisfied some questions and others at a later session, but the horse she claimed as wholly hers was claimed by Aertsen and Van der Bilt as half Coppe's and there was no record of money she claimed to have given Coppe to buy beavers. Asked if they would believe Geertje's statement without confirmation by oath, Aertsen, Van der Bilt, and the administrators said the Orphanmasters should decide that.

On September 6th Geertje refused to swear that she had given Coppe 100 florins for her personal account and that the horse was hers alone. "I do not intend to do it and shall not do it, not now nor ever," she declared flatly. Her declarations discredited, she was forbidden to draw the 100 florins she claimed and was ordered to pay 150 florins on the horse and 12 beavers to close the account with Coppe.

Geertje's refusal to take the oath need not necessarily persuade us that she lied, but that the swearing of a oath was so solemn an act, placing the immortal soul in jeapardy, that she must be absolutely positive her information was correct, and Geertje seems to have been the sort who was overtly sure but seldom positive.

Odds and ends show on the Minutes thereafter. On November 17, 1660, Francois de Bruyn asked for five beavers for an anker (20 gallons) of French wine for the Coppe funeral; Pieter Lauwerensen claimed 110 florins and was referred to the administrators; and Cornelis Aertsen was asked what should be done to collect from his wife's sister the money due the Coppe estate. Aertsen asked for delay to talk with Jan van der Bilt. On December 10, 1660, Geertje still hadn't settled with the estate and execution of judgement was being considered.

On October 4, 1661, Francois de Bruyn finally sued Cornelis Aertsen for the five beavers owed for the half anker of French wine drawn in Aertsen's name for the funeral of Jacob Coppe. Aertsen said he'd ordered the wine but couldn't get any proceeds from the estate to pay for it. Since it was ordered in his name, the Court ordered him to pay. As late as January 3, 1662, Cornelis Aertsen, "curator of the residuary estate of Jacob Coppe", was in court to obtain an order for payment of 24 guilders in beavers owed the estate.

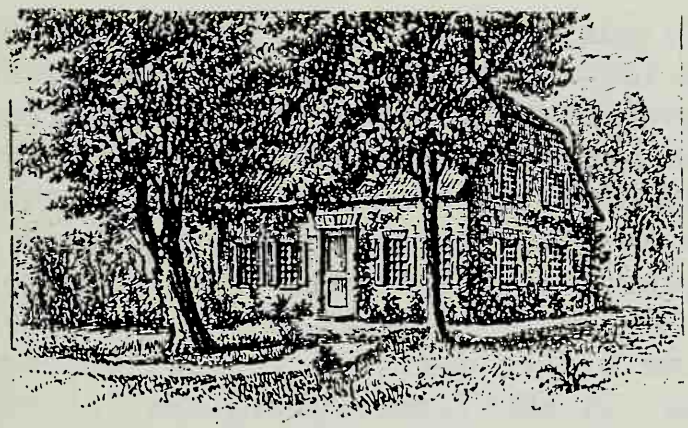
The Last Decade

Belitje Hendricks appeared in the Orphanmasters' Court on August 9, 1660, at the peak of her sister Geertje's problems. That is our last record of her in life. She'd been a witness in a dozen baptisms during the 1650's but the last such record dates from October 19, 1659. One suspects that Belitje was ailing for at least the last year of her life.

When or how she died we don't know. On March 2, 1662, Wyntje Elberts, widow of Aert Willems, told the Orphanmasters she intended to marry Cornelis Aertsen, widower of Belitje Hendricks. Belitje may have lived to see Hendrickje marry Lambert Huybertsen Mol, in a June-November match; the bride was near 18 and the groom over 50. The marriage was probably contracted in the chapel on Stuyvesant's Bouwery (where St. Marks now is) before September 1660 when Dominie Henricus Selyns began keeping the records with those of the church in Breuckelen; he served the Bouwery chapel on Sunday evenings. Hendrickje produced a son Cornelis, baptized May 4, 1661, in the church in New Amsterdam; Mol lived in town. That there were no witnesses may relate to Belitje's last illness.

Belitje may have attended the baptism on January 10, 1661, of Geertje's son, named after his eminent grandfather Gerrit van Tright. But Belitje must have been some months dead, when Arie married Rebecca Idens on February 27, 1662, probably in the Bouwery Chapel; the record is among those of the church in Breuckelen. Rebecca was the daughter of Ide Thonise of Nordigan, Holland, present with Cornelis Aertsen at the ceremony.

Soon after the wedding, Arie and Rebecca began housekeeping at the Aertsen Bouwery. On March 23rd, Arie appeared before the Orphanmasters to report that after his mother's death his father had turned the farm over to him; he asked that Willem Samuels, who had lived for some time with his parents, be left in his service. Belitje may have been dead for months and Arie implies his father had moved recently. It may be Aertsen worked the Damen land for some time before moving there.



THE DAMEN HOUSE.

The Great House, built of stone by Jan Damen two decades before was located on the hill a few hundred feet outside the wall at the edge of town. It was on the east side of the present Broadway diagonally across the present Cedar Street. In front of the house was the well and behind the house and barn was a hay barrick which, in the Visscher views of New Amsterdam, has been seen by some as a church steeple.

Nearby to the east was the Damen small house, then occupied by Pieter Stoutenburgh with whom Aertsen served from time to time as an arbitrator or guardian. In August 1663, as guardian, Stoutenburgh brought Willem Samuels, the orphaned son of Samuel Tomassen and a nephew of Claes Martensen (Cleyn Claesje) Van Rosenvelt, to live with him. Willem had lived with Arie and Rebecca for the past year and a half; he complained that Rebecca kicked and beat him. The other guardian, Thomas Hall notified the Orphanmasters he'd take Willem into his own home if he wasn't treated well by Pieter.

Rebecca shouldn't be judged too harshly for her treatment of Willem. She was young and in the eighth month of pregnancy in mid-summer before the days of air-conditioning. On October 1, 1663, her first born was baptized Belitje in the church in New Amsterdam with Cornelis Aertsen as a witness. Two years later on November 8th a son Iden was baptized and on November 6, 1667, a daughter Grietje.

Aertsen lived the rest of his life in the Great House of Jan Damen, but he did not live alone. On July 10, 1662, he married Wyntje Elberts, the widow of Aert Willems, both old friends. Willems had occupied the Great Bouwery in about 1640 and had prospered as a brewer and businessman, leaving an estate of 4400 guilders. His last year had been strained by a slander suit that Willem Beeckman pressed to clear the name of his lovely wife who was rumored to have coupled with Cornelis van Steenwyck. Aert and Wyntje had gossiped and were finally cleared with the arrest of the instigator. Wyntje remained a widow several years, a luxury allowed by her circumstances, although she did take in boarders for extra income.

At the time of her marriage to Aertsen, Wyntje had three unmarried sons, 21 to 17 years old: Willem, Elbert, and Evert. Aertsen's second son Hendrick was just under sixteen and Lysbeth was ten. Consequently, the Damen place housed several young people. For Wyntje the move to the Damen house was not far as her house on the Heere Wegh (Broadway) was but three blocks away, inside the wall on the same side of the road.

As operator of the Damen lands, according to Valentine, Aertsen continued his long practice of supplying the families of the city with country produce. Besides such staples as beans, peas, butter and cheese, products of the farm would have included turnips, carrots, and parsnips, squash and pumpkins, cabbage and other kales, salad greens, and some quantity of pork, beef, and fowl.

On February 24, 1664, threatened by the English, the City needed money to strengthen the fortifications and ninety burghers were asked to make loans for the purpose. "Cornelis Aarzen" was listed as lending 100 florins, the amount loaned by the majority. In April of 1665 "Cornelis Aarsen", living outside the land gate, was one of the 250 burghers assessed for support of the English soldiers, who had become a source of friction in what was otherwise a smooth transition to English rule. Soldiers had been causing disturbances and the authorities proposed that the Dutch volunteer to accept soldiers for quartering in their homes, thereby obtaining guards to protect them against other soldiers. No one volunteered so assessments were levied against the wealthier inhabitants to obtain money to induce the quartering of soldiers.

Aertsen's name appears twice in published records between the above dates, on March 25 and May 6 of 1664, but it is missing when it should have appeared at least twice. On September 5, 1664, when Pieter Stuyvesant was preparing to resist the English invasion, 93 men signed a remonstrance urging him to make peace. Vigne, Stoutenburgh, Loockermans, Mol, Planck, Verleth, Romeyn and even Stuyvesant's son Balthazer signed, but Cornelis Aertsen's name and mark are missing. Again on four days during the latter part of October 1664, over 250 male inhabitants of New York swore allegiance to the English king, but again Aertsen's name and mark are missing. Either a protracted illness or a journey home to Utrecht would account for these deficiencies in the record.

Arie Cornelis was prospering. Before Cornelis' death, Arie had taken over as an overseer of fences and was helping arbitrate disputes. He had leased lands assembled in a large holding as an investment by Cornelis Van Steenwyck and Oloff Stevensen Van Cortlandt and he thus followed in his father's footsteps as the manager of large leasehold lands. It is not clear whether the start of the Farmer's Tavern in about 1665 was at Aertsen's Bouwery, near the two mile stone, or on the Thomas Hall grant on Chatham Square, then owned by Van Cortland and Steenwyck. Arie and Rebecca certainly were settled at Chatham Square by the time of Aertsen's death.

Whether Cornelis Aertsen lived to see Hendrick, 22, marry Neeltje, daughter of Cornelis Jacobsen Stille, his neighbor on Bouwery No.6, we don't know. On March 10, 1669, Hendrick Cornelissen received a tapsters license in Bergen and on June 9, 1669, Hendrick Cornelissen and Neeltje Cornelis, both with certificates, were married at Bergen but never were members of the Bergen church. Hendrick ran a tavern there for some time, returning to farm on Manhattan. (A marriage of a Hendrick Cornelissen and a Neeltje Hendricks, both living across the Fresh Water, in the Church in New York, on May 19, 1669, probably does not pertain to Aertsen's family.)

In 1668 Aertsen was an arbitrator with Thomas Hall, Egbert Woutersen, and Jan Langestraat; the arbitrators made their report on April 7th at which time Aertsen was still living. But on September 16, 1669, his survivors Arie, Hendrick and Lysbet received a confirmation of title for Aertsen's Manhattan lands from the English Governor Lovelace, these tracts being the 22-acre parcel on the East River and the Bastiaen grant on the Bouwery Road. The three heirs sold the properties the following January. Confirmation of title was likely sought soon after Cornelis Aertsen's death to permit sale of the properties to settle the estate.

Appendix
Pieter Cornelissen

In preparing a history of the Bryant family of New Jersey in 1912, Dingman Versteeg could find no positive origins for the Bryant progenitor Pieter Cornelissen Breijandt van Steenwyck or for his wife Hendrickje Aerts whom Pieter married in Bergen, July 31, 1670. Understandably, Versteeg rejected the thesis that Pieter was a son of Cornelis van Steenwyck, possibly by an improper liaison.

Rather he argued that since Bryants and Hoppes in New Jersey acted as witnesses for each other at baptisms during the late 1600's, family ties had existed and: "Pieter was doubtless an oldest son of Cornelis Aertsen who settled in New Jersey while his younger brothers and sisters were growing up and assisting their father on the farm....He doubtless had received advances from his father which fully covered...his inheritance...and at the time of Pieter's marriage his father had just died."

Hoppe-Bryant kinship may have existed but not necessarily through Cornelis Aertsen. Hendrickje Aerts is the more likely link, either to Aertsen (sister, niece, cousin), or to Jan Aertsen van der Bilt whose sister she may have been; baptismal connections between his family and the Hoppes are found. Her name matches with names in both Aertsen families (Jan Aertsen's wife was Anneken Hendricks). Conversely, the name Pieter was seldom used in Utrecht by Van Schaicks and L.P. de Boer gives no instance in his paper.

Despite dealings between Ryck Hendricks (whose first wife was Judith Cornelis) and Cornelis Aertsen, there is no record to suggest family ties, nor are records found linking Judith Cornelis with Pieter or any other Cornelissen.

In calling Cornelis Aertsen "Bryant", Dingman Versteeg may have gone badly astray, but he is accurate in his appraisal of the man: "Cornelis Aertsen Breyandt was worthy in every respect, enterprising and public-spirited, a pioneer entitled to recognition among the founders of this... nation. He was in New Netherland before 1650 ...." That last was true of Cornelis but not necessarily of Pieter.

IDEN VAN SCOY (Vol. 1, P. 46)

bp. 28 October 1665, New York, New York

The great bulk of the descendants in this volume as well as Volume I are descendants of Iden. He had six sons and three daughters, five children by his first wife and four by the second. No record has been found of the descendants, if any, of the three daughters and of his son, Jacob.

CHAPTER VI

DESCENDANTS OF CORNELIUS VAN SCOY

IV-1-2-2-2

CORNELIUS VAN SCOY (Vol. 1, P. 50)

b. 11 December 1687, Brooklyn, New York

Cornelius was the second child and first son of Iden Van Schaick (Van Scoy).

In 1704 his parents moved from Flushing, Long Island to Cold Spring Harbor, Oyster Bay, Long Island where a farm had been purchased. Under the terms of his father's will, Cornelius inherited the farm after the decease of Iden's second wife Mary, or her remarriage. Iden died in 1728 and his widow married Samuel Smith in 1732. Hence Cornelius became owner of the farm. Cornelius married Patience Barnes 2 October 1729. He sold the farm in the middle 1730's and moved to North Salem, Westchester County, New York where he purchased farmland.

DESCENDANTS OF FRANCIS SEDAN VAN SCHAICK

IV-1-2-2-3

FRANCIS SEDAN VAN SCHAICK (Vol. 1, P. 111)

bp. 7 July 1689, Dutch Church, Brooklyn, New York

Francis was the third child and second son of Iden Van Schaick (Scoy). After a childhood in Jamaica, Francis moved with his parents to Oyster Bay, Long Island, New York. As a young man he became a member of the Militia for the Queens County under Captain James Dickenson. His father Iden was a member of the same Company.

Some time in the period 1716-1721 Francis moved to Monmouth County, New Jersey. The first record of Francis in Monmouth County pertains to his being sued by William Bromet for ten pounds on 24 May 1722. The suit was withdrawn. Francis married Isabel Rhea in Monmouth County about 1722.

They were the parents of nine children, six boys and three girls.

HEZEKIAH VAN SCHOIACK (Vol. 1, P. 114)

b. ca. 1770, Maryland

d. 2 August 1841, Russellville, Montgomery County, Indiana, Bur. Russellville, Indiana

m. Sarah Clark, 16 June 1799, Fleming County, Kentucky

b. 22 August 1781

d. 30 June 1861, Albia, Iowa, Bur. Russellville, Montgomery County, Indiana

The Will of Hezekiah was dated 28 July 1841. It was filed in the office of the Clerk of Montgomery County, Indiana. At that time Hezekiah and Sarah had eight living children, two sons, Elza, b. 1811, Asbury, b. 1819 and six daughters, Jane, Elizabeth, Ruth, Nancy, Mary and Minerva. Volume I did not include the names of these daughters, as the Will of Hezekiah was not available to the Compiler at that time. Hezekiah acquired 160 acres of land in Brown Township Montgomery County, Indiana from the Government on 23 November 1822, also 400 acres of land in Parke County, Indiana. When he moved his family to Montgomery County in 1833, he acquired an additional 160 acres in Brown T., Montgomery County. Hezekiah later acquired two 80 acre tracts in Montgomery County and two town lots in Russellville, Putnam County. He sold 240 acres between the years 1830 and 1837. Thus he owned 640 acres of land at the time of his death.

Under his Will, Elza and Asbury each received 240 acres of land. The 160 acres of land he owned in Park County was to be sold and the proceeds divided equally between his six daughters. However, seven years passed before the land was sold. Each daughter received $1,191.88 for their share of the land. However the estate was not closed until 9 April 1857. Hezikiah had made extensive loans to individuals and at the time of his death there were 52 loans outstanding. Collection of the outstanding loans was not easy and litigation was required in some instances.

It should be noted that the Robert shown in Volume I on P. 114 as the son of Hezekiah is in error. Little data is available in regard to five of the six daughters who were living in 1841. The exception is Ruth who married James Evans, 10 February 1822. All the other daughters with the exception of Minerva married. Hezekiah's Will directed that his son Asbury maintain Minerva so long as she remained single. Also, when married she was to receive a horse, saddle and bridle, a bed and headstead, also a cow, six sheep and six hogs. Asbury was relieved of the maintenance task in less than a year when Minerva married Sanford Clark in 1842.

Data is not available of the birthdates of the six surviving daughters with the exception of Ruth. The married names of the other five daughters are as follows:

Jane. (Mrs. James) Forgey
Elizabeth (Mrs. Thoas C. Burton
Nancy (Mrs. William A.) Wilson
Mary (Mrs. James W.) Durham
Minerva (Mrs. Sanford) Clark

Since the order of birth is unknown the Compiler has assigned No. 1 to Ruth though it is possible that she may not be the first born child of Hezekiah and Sarah.

6. Nancy	b.	1831, Indiana
7. Sarah	b.	1835, Indiana

James moved his family from Nicholas County, Kentucky to Putnam County, Indiana in 1827. He purchased 152 1/2 acres of land near Russellville for $220. On this land he erected a cabin. He cleared the land and began farming and raising stock and horses. This farm has remained in the family and is presently owned by the heirs of Simpson F. Evans.

Other than data for Daniel the only information available for the other children of James and Ruth pertains to Nancy who married Firman Grimes and Sarah who married W.H. Durham.

Land for a Methodist Church in Russellville was purchased by Hezekiah Van Schoiack and James Evans. However, it was not deeded to the Church until 5 November 1952.

Lot F. Thomas and wife
Pernelia Harriet (Hattie) (VanSkike) Thomas

The family owned a homestead on Mill Creek in Southern Dallas County, Missouri. About 1912 the family moved to Battlefield, Green County, Missouri. Their homestead was near the James River.

Hattie was well known in the communities where she lived as she was midwife to friends, neighbors and relatives. Upon the death of her daughter-in-law Emma, she took into their home her granddaughter Nellie, whom she raised to maturity.

Lot Thomas was a part time farmer, orchardist, book salesman and passenger agent for the railroad at Battlefield, Greene County Missouri.

Hattie kept a diary of the happenings in her family and those of relatives, friends and neighbors. Her daughter Aurilla enjoyed writing letters to relatives about her family and the families of others. A great grandson of Hattie and grandson of Aurilla, James E. Brickley has turned this material into a fascinating book entitled "The Dear Old Book of Hattie Thomas."

Byron Virgil Dunn and wife
Mary Ann (Cole) Dunn

Byron is the son of Henry Lewis and Louisa Elizabeth (Arnold) Dunn. When Byron was 8 years of age his father moved his family from Bremer County, Iowa to Oregon. They arrived in Salem, Oregon, ca. 1871.

About five years after his marriage to Mary Cole, Byron and his family traveled in a covered wagon to Montana where his sister Mary Ellen had moved. He settled a claim on the Musselshell River. Byron drove a stage carrying freight and cattle and raised some prized race horses, usually winners.

Shortly after the end of World War I, Byron sold his properties in Montana and moved back to Oregon and Washington and settled at Algona, Washington.

During their residence in Montana several of the young children were afflicted with diptheria. Some of the children were saved from death with an anti-toxin, developed by a doctor in Cottage Grove, Oregon, W.W. Oglesby, and uncle of Mary Ann Cole. In desperation over the disease killing so many patients he shot the germs into his fine horses to make a vaccine. This form of vaccine is still in use today.

Susan Emily was killed at age 12 by a bolt of lightning.

Byron Virgil Jr., lost his life at age 3 by a run-away team of horses and wagon.

John was a private in the Ohio Militia during the War of 1812. He served from 28 May to 27 October 1812. His Company was commanded by Captain David Sutton, 2nd Regiment of Ohio Infantry. Colonel Findley commanded the Regiment which was part of the Command of General William Hull. The Regiment advanced to Malden in the first phase of an invasion of Upper Canada. This advance was stalled at Malden in part due to the lack of artillery. The British cut Hull's line of communications and he was forced to retreat South to Detroit.

The British under command of General Sir Isaac Brock demanded the surrender of the American forces and Hull acceded to the demand. The surrender on August 16th without resistance aroused severe criticism of General Hull and as a result he was court martialed.

John was paroled and returned home. In 1871 he filed a Declaration for a survivors Pension.

When John Jesteen became 20 years of age, he purchased 80 acres of farmland in Smith County, Kansas, but leased it for several years while he traveled in Colorado and other states, including Iowa, where he met Hannah Belle Seward. She became his wife in Chariton, Iowa on 12 June 1906. The next day John and his bride took the train to Gaylord, Kansas. The first five children were born in Smith County, Kansas. John sought new farm land and in 1916 the family moved to a farm near Canton, Blaine County, Oklahoma. Life was harsh and it was a constant struggle to keep food on the table and hold on to the farm.

John was a self taught fiddler and during the depression years he fiddled for friends and the public. Johns' land was next to the Canadian River and in 1940 the government bought the land in order to build a dam across the river. The family moved to an 80 acre farm in Dewey County, Oklahoma. The family lived there until the death of John on 24 July 1956, as the result of an automobile accident.

After the death of John, Hannah went to California to visit her children. She then visited her sister Myrtle in Newberg, Oregon. Upon her return to Vallejo, California she became seriously ill and died. Her body was shipped to Canton for burial.

When he was twelve years old he accompanied his parents to Franklin County, Norwick T., where his father purchased one hundred and seventy acres of heavily timbered land. A log cabin was erected and the land cleared for farming. William T. received a limited education from attendance at subscription schools in the area. He married Elizabeth Weeden a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Weeden. William T. inherited fifty acres of land from his father, on which he erected a house. He devoted his life work to farming. William and Nancy were the parents of nine children.

George entered law practice in Rochester, New York where he became known for meticulous care of his cases and the clarity of his argumentation. He became active in community affairs and politics. In 1912 he left the Democratic Party briefly to head the local Bull Moose movement of President Theodore Roosevelt. However this political turn did not hamper his appointment by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt to the office of Insurance Commissioner of the State of New York in 1930.

During the stress of the depression years his administration was able to aid the insurance industry in remaining solvent. In 1935 he left public life to join a large New York Insurance Company as Vice President. Retiring from this position in 1948 he was called to head another New York Insurance Company which was experiencing difficulties. He succeeded in restoring this company to good health. During his lifetime he accepted numerous public affairs assignments including the head of the New York Bar Association Legal Aid Committee.

CHAPTER VIII

DESCENDANTS OF AARON VAN SCHAICK

IV-1-2-2-5

AARON VAN (SCHAICK) SCOYOC SR. (Vol. 1, P. 397)

b. 25 December 1692, Oyster Bay, Long Island, New York

While the census records for the years 1790-1820 are missing, as well as many of the tax and church records, certain of the early period records were located and placed in the New Jersey Archives. Among these are the Minutes of the Court of Common Pleas of Hunterdon County and the Hunterdon County Loan Office Book. The latter book shows that in March 1737 Aaron borrowed twenty pounds from the Commissioners of Hunterdon County on a Mortgage covering 50 acres of his land in Bethlehem Township. Final payment was made by Aaron on 26 April 1750.

Aaron was involved in litigation before the Court of Common Pleas on several occasions. During the May Term, 1729, the case of Leonard vs. Aron Van Syhook was before the Court. It involved a Claim for 19 pounds, 16 shillings and six pence.

In the May Term, 1735, the Administrators of the estate of John Ferguson sued Aaron Van Sckyhawke for 12 pounds, 6 shillings. The Court held that the Claim had not been established.

In October 1734, Aaron served on the Grand Jury appointed by the Court of Common Pleas.

Aaron was the Appellant in a case against Isaac Leet. Judge Hoff had held for the Appellee; however the Court set aside the holding of Judge Hoff and allowed costs to Aaron.

During the years he lived in Hunterdon County Aaron was Administrator of several estates, two in 1735.

In addition to the 300 acres of land purchased about 1762, in Adams County, Pennsylvania, Aaron purchased 43 1/2 acres of land adjoining his property in Huntington Township, known as the "Amswell Plain" from Thomas and Richard Penn. The patent application was No. 3759 and dated 29 May 1767. The contract was dated 18 January 1768 and provided for payment of 5 pounds sterling per 100 acre plus one penny sterling for every acre yearly quitrent. The contract was accepted by John Penn on 4 February 1768 on behalf of Thomas and Richard Penn, Governors in Chief of the Province of Pennsylvania.

Daniel joined his brother-in-law, George Iams in the California gold rush. However, he returned to Whitley County, Indiana after the birth of his son William. He and Anna lived near her father in Whitley County, where all the children were born. After the birth of John Wesley, Daniel and Anna separated. Thereafter the three younger children changed their surname to Grable. Before the parents of Anna died she went to California, thence to Vancouver Island, British Columbia. In her last letter she wrote of being called to testify in a trial for murder, but had to go by boat to the place where the trial was to be held. No further word from Anna was ever received. Her parents believe that she had been killed to prevent her from testifying.

He is an avid yachtsman. In 1981 when he and a companion were sailing from New Orleans to Moorehead, North Carolina, the yacht sank and they spent 13 days on a tiny life raft in the Atlantic Ocean with only a jug of water, some granola bars, six fish hooks and four flares. They were rescued by a fellow yachtsman near Walkers Cay in the Bahamas. It was a most frightening experience with a one in a thousand chance of survival. He now owns a yacht basin at Arapahoe, North Carolina.

HENRY SMITH VAN SCOYOC (Vol. 1, P. 660)

m. Margaret Ann Wees, 25 September 1867

Henry and Margaret are buried side-by-side in the Mt. Hope Cem., Peru, Indiana.

In 1985, the grave site was located by Charlet Smith of Peru who is the wife of Joseph Smith the great grandson of Henry and Margaret. However, she found no markers or stones at the grave site. Through contributions of seven descendants, it was possible in 1985 to purchase and place a suitable head stone bearing the names of Henry and Margaret and their birth and death years.

(Seven in 1820)

As noted in Volume I, P. 705), it was believed that Jonathan, his wife and children succumbed to cholera, between 1820 and 1830. Mrs. Dale Van Scoyk of Fairview, Wyoming provided information that two orphan children of Jonathan survived the plague, John Elial and Frank. Since no county and state official records could be located indicating that a plague occurred in Butler County in 1820-30 period it was concluded that a search should be made of the newspapers published during that period. A researcher was employed for that purpose. Unfortunately the files of the newspapers published in Butler and Hamilton Counties during this period are very incomplete. Examination of such files as were available did not disclose that a plague had occurred in the 1820-30 period. The search was extended beyond 1830. Information about an outbreak of Asiatic Cholera which occurred in Morgan and Ross Townships in Butler County during July and August of 1934 was located. Forty nine people died, however, Jonathan and his family were not listed as victims of the plague.

The information provided by Mrs. Van Scoyk about the two survivors of Johnathan's family is that they were raised by (Aunt) Eliza Snow a school teacher who never had any children of her own. Eliza is reputed to have had a sister that married a Van Scoyk.

Although the information linking John Elial and Frank to Jonathan is not as positive as one would like, it was concluded that this information should be included in Volume II with the qualifications as set forth above.

Frank, the younger brother of John Elial was apparently raised by a relative other than Aunt Eliza Snow. Little is known of his early history. During the Civil War, Frank was living in Nebraska near Stella. One night some Confederate sympathizers rode up on horses to his house and called to him. When he opened the door they shot him and rode off. His widow and the three children moved away. This incident has not been verified.

CHAPTER X

DESCENDANTS OF TIMOTHY VAN SCHAICK

IV-1-2-2-8

TIMOTHY VAN (SCHAICK) SCOY (Vol. 1, P. 727)

b. ca. 1724, Oyster Bay, Long Island, New York

m. ?, (Johanna Inscow) ca. 1752

Children

1. Aaron b. 1 Mar. 1754

Timothy was born ca. 1724, the third son of Iden Van Scoy and his second wife Mary. Four years later his father died and in 1733 his mother married Samuel Smith. It is reasonable to assume that the four children of Mary and Iden became members of the Smith family, but the surviving Smith records do not so indicate. Information concerning Timothy's life is very sparce. He appears in the records of the Court of Common Pleas of Hunterdon County, New Jersey for the August 1749 term in connection with a debt of 7 lbs. Again in the August 1750 term in regard to a debt of 80 lbs. It appears that this sum was owed by Timothy to Nicholas Albertson.

In 1762, Timothy, (then 38) was suspended from the Kingswood Baptist Church of Hunterdon County. The Church Minutes state "The church suspends Timothy Van Schyak for the sin of drunkeness, fighting, quarelling and frollicking vc and concluds to cite him to come to our next meeting of bizness in order to give us some better satisfaction or else to proceed against him and to debar him of all privileges of the church. vc"

Ten years later the Church Minutes of August 1, 1772 state "Then Timothy Van Scoy appeared at the church and was restored to his place."

Timothy was the owner of 100 acres of improved land in Kingwood Township, Hunterdon County, New Jersey. He was listed among the "Tax Ratables" for the year 1778 and several other years for which records are available. In 1778, the improvements were valued at 250 pounds. He also had three horses, cattle and 6 hogs. He was taxed 2 lbs 3 shillings and eight pence.

It is not certain if Timothy and Johanna were ever married.

"and further the said Emley agrees that the said Aron Vanscoyoc shall be perfect in casting up accounts provided he retains his natural _____"

Aaron married his wife Elizabeth, ca. 1785, probably in Hunterdon County, New Jersey. The whereabouts of Aaron and his family during the next 19 years is uncertain. He is believed to be the Aaron who was in the Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania Census of 1790. The Census indicates the family consisted of Aaron, his wife, one male child under the age of 16 and one female child. This family was not included in the 1800 Pennsylvania Census. It is believed they settled in that part of Virginia (now West Virginia) which is directly West of Pennsylvania and includes the Counties of Hancock, Brooke, Ohio and Marshall.

The family left this part of Virginia in 1804. They traveled in wagons to Gallia County, Ohio where they remained for five or six years. In 1811 the family moved to Huntington Township, Ross County, Ohio.

Aaron became a soldier in the War of 1812. He served six months for $6.00 per month which he never received.

INDEXES

The inclusion of five indexes in this Volume will facilitate the location in the book of a particular individual and/or family group of ancestors or descendants. These indexes are:

1. Male Descendants of Cornelis Aertsen Van Schaick bearing Anglicized Dutch surnames - Page 1072.
2. Female Descendants of Cornelis Aertsen Van Schaick bearing Anglicized Dutch surnames - Page 1080.
3. Wives of Male Descendants - Page 1087.
4. Other Male Descendants of Cornelis Aertsen Van Schaick and husbands of Female Descendants - Page 1101.
5. Other Female Descendants of Cornelis Aertsen Van Schaick - Page 1138.

Some instances exist in this Volume where the surnames of wives, husbands and children are missing. Similarly, some given names are missing. The principal cause of the missing surnames of wives is the non-inclusion in U.S. Census data of the maiden name of the wife and the absence in most states of public marriage records prior to the 1900s.

Many of the family lines in this Volume commence with a reference to a numbered page in Volume I. Thus, to obtain the complete ancestry of this referenced individual it is necessary to refer to Volume I. Also, in many instances the information in Volume II concerning the referenced individual is only supplemental to the information in Volume I. To secure all of the available information about an individual reference should be made to the indexes in both Volume I and Volume II.
